BOXER FREE IN POLICE PROBE

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13.—UP—A bootlegger who supplied gin for a party which ended in the death of the 20-year old girl companion of Bobby La Salle, well-known Pacific Coast boxer, was arrested by police today.

The liquor vendor, Dan W. Hatt, was charged with suspicion of manslaughter. The body of Hazel Cole, art student, was found partially clad in a Culver City bungalow. Police said that La Salle was on the floor nearby, unconscious from intoxication and that the arpartment was in great disorder.

Hatt also was booked for alleged sale and possession of liquor. He was identified by La Salle as the man who sold hi mthe gin. La Salle when aroused from his stupor several hours after the body was found, expressed every desire to aid police. He was not arrested.

Later, Sam Stutzel, said to have operated the gin bottling plant, was held on a Los Angeles city charge of manslaughter.

The apartment in which the party occurred had been rented by Neil Murphy, a sound department assistant in a film studio. Murphy said that he and La Salle purchased eight quarts of gin and then went to a beach dance pavilion at Ocean Park. There they met Miss Cole and Miss May Lauine.

At 11:30 p. m. they adjourned to the apartment and drank for a time, Murphy said. Later he took Miss Lavine home, returned to the apartment, made another trip to Los Angeles and then went to the apartment once more. He found Miss Cole dead, La Salle unconsicious and summoned aid.

While no official autopsy had been held, a police doctor said that Miss Cole's death probably was caused by the effect of gin on medicine she had been taking for a recent ailment. However, police were basing their early moves on a possibility of poison liquor. Miss Cole was a garduate of the Loretta Academy of Santa Fe, N. M. and came here from Walnut, Ark., five years ago.

Women Will Be Quizzed In Slaying

Jealousy of a discarded sweetheart or an infuriated husband is now being investigated as the reason for the murder of Michael Pollara, 37, of Oakland, whose bullet riddled body was found near Byron Contra Costa county early Sunday.

Although Oakland police officials and the Contra Costa county sheriff force had not given up the theory that Pollara was a victim of a bootleg gang, they late yesterday learned that he had been popular with several women who were to be questioned regarding their acquaintance with him.

It was declared in police circles that a jealous sweetheart and an offended husband may have banded together to "get" Pollara.

A husband of four months Pollara was supposedly leading a peaceful life with his wife Mamie Pollara, widow of the brother of the dead man. Their home was at 6279 Chabot road, Oakland.

The missing car of the murdered man was found in a lot less than three blocks from the Oakland police station. This started police on another mystery hunt. Mrs. Pollara declared she did not know of any bootlegging activities in which her dead husband might have engaged. She said she had only known him as a hard working man of a San Francisco commission house.

The gun with which the man may have been murdered was believed found late last night when a rancher telephoned the sheriff's office of the find on the siding near Clayton.

Silver Loan For China Asked

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 13.—Pacification of China through a loan of five hundred million ounces of silver as a means of bolstering price of the metal was urged at the opening session of the American mining congress and the American Instituee of Metallurgical enginers here today by Frank M. Smith, of Spokane, Wash.

Smith, who is smelter director of the Bunker Hill and Sullivan Mining company of Spokane, favors pacification of China by peaceful methods on the part of treaty powers.

"Financial assistance would enable the Nationalists either to defeat or to make more attractive overtures to the opposing war lords," he said.

"With order restored in China, stocks of the metal now hoared in Shanchai would flow back to the interior and a new demand would be greater," Smith contended. He explained China is the only large nation still using silver as a money basis.

More than 300 mining engineers and officials from all parts of the world are here for the session, John E. Penberthy came from Elizabethville, Belgian Congo.

ITARARE, Parana-Soa Paulo Frontier, Brazil, Oct. 13.—UP—I arrived here today to find federal troops strongly entrenched on the Parana-Soa Paulo border, and carrying out a campaign in combination with the federal troops in Santa Catharina.

The federal leaders declared they hoped to drive the rebels in both states eastward toward the Atlantic, where federal warships and armed commandeered private ships have been stationed. A major battle appears imminent.

The federalists are in full control of the towns of Salto Grande, Ribeira, Itarara, Ribeiroa Claro, Jacarezino and Capara.

Taken

Troops from Ribeirao Claro descended from the north on the town of Colonia Mineira yesterday, and took the city, inflicting heavy losses on the rebels. Itarare is the real center of the civil war zone at present. It is the conceneration point for the federalist armies.

Volunteers are arriving daily at this frontier town, together with arms and supplies. There are 8,000 troops already at Itarare, which is about 410 miles southwest of Rio de Janeiro.

The troops are well equipped with light and heavy field artillery. Twenty-two cannon arrived yesterday.

Planes on Raids

Two squadrons of eight planes equipped with bombs, using Itarare as a base, are making frequent raids into rebel territory. There is considerable more activity on both sides than has been apparent in meager news from the various fronts.

The armies on both sides appear to be mobilizing their best forces ready for a major offensive, and it is anticipated there will be a hard battle soon, with many casualties on both sides. The vast distances make rapid military movements difficult if not impossible, but the storm was gathering.

Col. Paes Andrade, directing the Parana-Soa Paulo border operations, told the United Press correspondent the federalists expected to take Jagarihya in the next few days, thus assuring the government complete control of the Parana border, and eliminating the possibility of the rebels entering the state of Soa Paulo from the south.

The federalists plan to march on Curityba, capital of Parana, a city 100 miles south and east of Itarare, Colonel Andrade said. While the northern federalist forces concentrating here were making this push, he said, General Juan Nepomuceno da Costa, in command at Florianopolis, capital of Santa Catharina state, just south of Parana, would maneuver to make contact with these forces.

INQUEST TO BE HELD SOON

SAN RAFAEL, Oct. 13.—UP—Results of an investigation of the automobile accident in which John D. Ellis, 21, of 1619 Pennsylvania avenue, Richmond, was killed near here Sunday will be disclosed at an inquest to be held here some time next week, the coroner's office said tonight.

The custom in Marin county of calling coroner's juries only twice a month will delay the official findings until that time.

Ellis died in Cottage hospital here at 3:30 p. m. Sunday.

An hour and a half earlier he had received a crushed chest and internal injuries when the automobile he was driving went off the Point Pedro road near McNear's Point.

There is a three mile stretch of level road where the accident happened, which caused officers to advance theories that it had been caused by a mechanical defect of the machine, excessive speed by another automobile crowding Ellis off the road.

It was believed a verdict of accidental death would [illegible]

ROBBER SHOT BY VICTIM

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13.—UP—Shot twice through the back by a 19 year old youth from whom he had just stolen $900, John Rayborn, 32, was in critical condition here tonight.

The young loan office assistant who fired the shots received credit from police for his forceful action.

Rayborn entered the Big Loan company early today and ordered Harry Blumenthal, 19, who was alone at the time, to go in a back room and give him "the heavy stuff," according to the police report.

Blumenthal was then bound and the robber left with $900 he had taken from a safe. The ropes about Blumenthal were not tight, however, and the younth freed himself almost immediately, grabbed a revolver and pursued Rayborn for half a block before opening fire on him.

Attendants at San Francisco hospital said tonight ehat Rayborn's condition was "very bad".

Roosevelt Shooting Anniversary Today

Today is the eighteenth anniversary of the shooting of Theodore Roosevelt at Milwaukee during his campaign for the Bull Moose party.

Roosevelt was shot by John Scrank, just as the ex-persident had taken a seat in an automobile preparatory to going to the municipal auditorium for an election speech on Oct. 14, 1912. The bullet struck Roosevelt on the right breast, fractured a rib, but failed to puncture his lung. An eye-glass case and a folded manuscript in his coat pocket delayed the progress of the bullet. Otherwise, it was said, Roosevelt would have been killed.

This fact was made known last night by Everett Cohen, chairman of the American Legion Americanization committee.

TODAY—DOLLAR DAYS—TOMORROW

LEGION ELEVEN WINS BY BIG SCORE

Slipping, sliding and rolling through six inches of mud, the Richmond American Legion eleven defeated the City of Paris team of San Francisco, by a 23 to 0 score on the Richmond Union high school field Sunday.

Playing ankle deep in mud, the City of Paris squad was no match for the hard hitting Legion squad, and the score would have been considerably larger, had there been a dry field, grid experts declared Sunday.

As it was, the performance presented by Claude Samples' Legionnaires, proved to all and sundry that the Richmond Post has a team they can shout to the heavens about.

Good Team

Sunday's game showed Richmond fans that the local squad has to is seriously considered when figuring on the state championship, and proved without a doubt that Samples has developed one of the most co-ordinated football machines ever seen in this vicinity.

With interference working like clockwork, and completing numerous passes, the American Legion team battered its way down the field time after time, keeping the transbay aggregation on the defensive throughout the entire game.

Earl Jester was the outstanding player of the day, rolling off plunges and runs of 10, 15 and 20 yards with unceasing regularity.

Score In First

The first score came early in the first quarter when Carson, Frazier, Dixon, Barton, and a few more Legionnaire linesmen sifted through their opponent's line and tackled the runner behind his own goal line for a safety.

Shortly after, when a series of plunges by Hurley and Jester had brought the ball to the City of Paris' 20 yard line, F. Sheehy snagged one of J. MacAllister's passes out of the air and crossed the goal line to make the score 8 to 0 in favor of Richmond. Jester plunged over the line for the extra point.

No further scoring was accomplished until the last quarter when Jester, taking the ball on a reverse, skirted the transbay team's end for a 25 yard run and a touchdown. Freeman plunged the ball over for the extra point.

Samples Scores

A few plays later, Samples, showing some of the speed that characterized his track days with the University of Montana, skirted the end for 25 yards and another touchdown. Cline [illegible] ged the ball over the line [illegible] e scoring for the day.

Throughout the entire game the Legionnaires had everything their own way, ripping off yardage just about as they pleased, and completing numerous passes.

With MacAllister as the passer, five successive passes were completed in the first quarter, the MacAllister to Younge combination accounting for six completed throws during the game.

MacAllister Scores

MacAllister, noted for his passing abilities, completed over 75 percent of his throws, slipping two in a row to Hurley, and giving F. Sheehy one for the first touchdown.

Samples, who is being hailed throughout this district as a second Glenn Scoby Warner, was the recipient of a host of compliments on his generalship yesterday in shoving in almost complete new teams at each quarter.

Herman Myers, star Legion center, was honorary captain yesterday, and played his usual spectacular game, backing up the line on defense in a commendable manner, and proving a valuable man on offense, in opening holes.

The starting lineup was: Dixon and B. MacAllister, ends; Carson and Adcock, tackles; B. Irwin and Frazier, guards; Myers, center; Youngs, quarter; MacAllister and Hurley, halfbacks and E. Jester, fullback.

Kansas City Star Leading Women Golfers

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13.—UP—Only two entrants succeeded in bettering par for the long north course of the Los Angeles country club today in the qualifying round of the 34th annual women's national amateur golf championship.

One of the two, Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City, scored a 79, two strokes under par, to lead the field.

A stroke behind her was Miss Helen Hicks, of New York, who had an 80 for the 18 holes.

A famous trio was right on their heels with par-equalling cards of 81 each. The three were Glenna Collett, of New York; Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago and Maureen Orcutt, of New Jersey.

Miss Collett, defending her title for the third consecutive year, was one stroke over par with a 40 on the way out and one under with a 41 on the way in. Miss Orcutt rallied with a 40 for the second nine after being two strokes over with a 41 at the turn. Miss Van Wie cracked par by a stroke on the first nine, but lost the advantage coming in.

The far west's chief hope, Mrs. Leona Pressler, of San Gabriel, was next behind the famous trio with an 82, one stroke over par, to take sixth place. She was two over at the turn with a 41, but clipped one off on the way in.

WOODMAN NINE DEFEATED BY PULLMANS

The Richmond Woodmen went down to an eight to four defeat before the Pullman Service Station diamond aggregation Sunday.

The Pullman outfit triumphed by reason of its superior hitting. The Service Station athletes collected 13 bingles, while the Woodmen were only able to garner a hitting total of seven. Martin held the mound for the Wodomen, while Peacock and Gracia alternated on the mound for the victors.

The contest was formerly scheduled as an opening game of the Oakland Winter league. However, the condition of the wet grounds caused the officials to pronounce Sunday's contest as only a practice go.

Soccer Club Defeated By Crockett 11

During the last few minutes of play, a Crockett attack on the Richmond goal caused the Richmond Soccer club squad to lose to the Crockett warriors by a score of three to two, Sunday.

The game was a sensational battle in spite of a slippery field, and it gave the soccer league a fine start in this section of the eastbay.

Crockett started the scoring when its forwards rushed the local goal at almost half time. Richmond returned to the fray to score twice in quick succession. Douglas Brain scored both points on fast attacks. Crockett again tied the score within a few minutes. Neither team was able to gain an advantage until Crockett made its fatal drive that resulted in the ball landing in the locals' net.

The Richmond eleven showed a clever brand of soccer Sunday in its first clash of the season, and it may be relied upon to remain high up in the league standing during the 1930 season.

The local athletes who saw action against Crockett last weekend were: Brock, goal; Freese and Blair, backs; Baker, Blair and Russell, halfbacks; Hood, Glasson, Brain, Mosserop, and Grice, forwards.

There are still chances for soccer players to secure a berth on the Richmond Soccer club squad. Players may sign up with either of the following officers: Ted Thompson president; G. McCord, vice-president; Joe Baker, secretary; Tom Pimm, treasurer; and Ernie Robinson, coach and manager.

Newest Ring Marvel Right From Cairo

NE WYORK, Oct. 13.—UP—What with the Carnera hysteria subsiding it was about time that a new colorful alien prize fighter came to the United States to meet the domestic ring talent. He arrived today and gave his name as Prince Salah El Din, address, Cairo.

The prince was chaperoned by Walter Friedman, fight manager, who introduced his protege to the reporters boarding the liner Leviathan down the bay.

"Boys," said Friedman, "meet the prince."

The boys saw a 205-pounder in a double-breasted blue serge suit over which was draped a brown blanket. His highness also wore a turban.

"The prince," declared Friedman whose knowledge of geography is only equalled by his erudition in history, "comes from a long line of Egyptian sultans. They were all rare fighters and were apt to put one on the button of anybody they disliked.

"Hey," cut in Salah El Din, "I didn't go to Oxford. They learned me American at the American school in Cairo."

McCORMACK IN SONG FILM AT FOX

The fact that at the Fox-California theater, closing tonight local movie lovers are to have the privilege of both seeing and hearing the world's greatest tenor, through the medium of a Fox movietone production in which he is starred, brings to mind the thought that, to speak of John McCormack's successes is to invite a certain uniformity, so unvaried in his long list of triumphs. "Song O' My Heart" is the latest in the series.

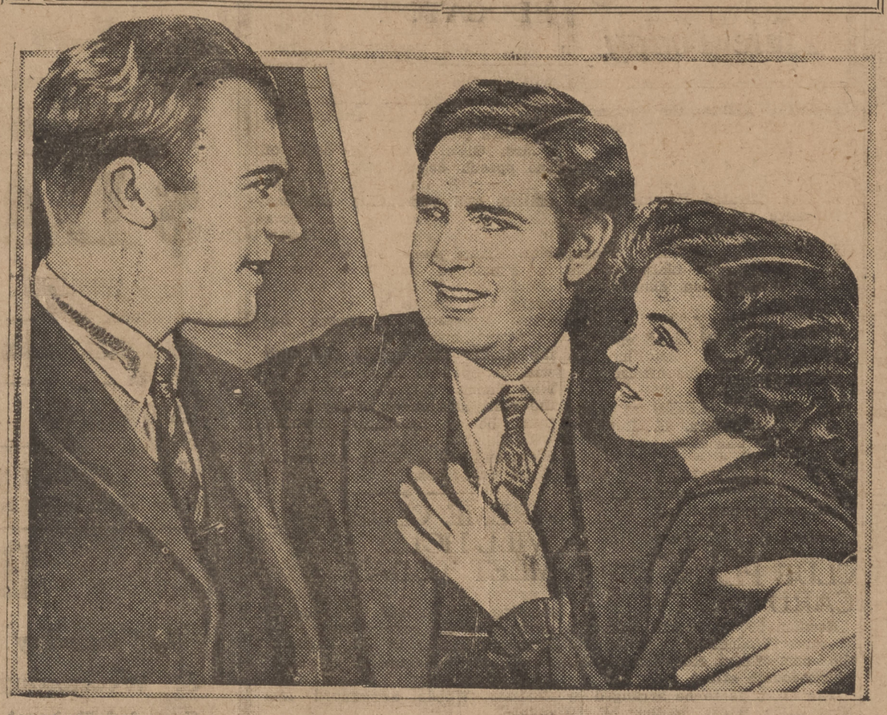
Since his American debut at the Manhattan Opera house, New York City, with Madame Tetrazzini, his career has been meteoric. His name is spoken in almost all sections of the habitable globe and in this country he is a national figure. To America he is something more than an artist, he is enshrined in the hearts of the public.

A famous editor recently wrote: "John McCormack's voice and art have given more real delight and inspiration to a greater number of people than any other voice of all time. He has taken happiness and peace into thousands upon thousands of homes. His life and work have made millions happy and for that he deserves honor and happiness himself."

Primarily, that added millions might hear the voice of this great singer was the reason that Winfield Sheehan, vice president and general manager of the Fox Film corporation, induced McCormack to accept a picture starring contrace. The clarity and the definiteness of Fox movietone makes his acquisition invaluable.

In the picture, directed by Frank Borzage and based on a story written especially for McCormack by Tom Barry, the supporting cast includes Maureen O'Sullivan, J. M. Kerrigan, Farrell Macdonald, Effie Ellsler, John Garrick and Tommy Clifford.

Song O' My Heart



JOHN McCORMACK, famous Irish singer, is the stary in "SONG O' MY HEART" which is being shown at the Fox-California eheater today.

Furniture Clearance Sensation of 1930
Central Furniture Co. ANNOUNCES
REMOVAL SALE

THANK YOU RICHMOND! . . . It was only about eight years ago when we took over a little, rundown, furniture store that we ran under the name of the Subway Furniture Store . . . Our growth in that short period has been a matter of wonder and of pride to us . . . Three times we have outgrown our business quarters; one enlargement followed another, until now, for the fourth time, we are moving into enlarged quarters—this time at the corner of Thirteenth and Macdonald, former location of the Ford salesroom and garage. . . . This building is now being remodeled into a modern, first-class salesroom, with all conveniences for displaying our stock, where shopping will be a pleasure. . . . This growth has been based upon a business ideal of better values combined with better service, and our rapid growth testifies to just how well we have fulfilled that guiding principle. . . . Your splendid response has accompanied every step of our growth. And Now, proud of our successful past and setting out for an even greater future; and wishing to move from our present quarters as little as possible, we are offering you for the next few days values unparalleled in choice furniture for living room, dining room or bedroom, rugs, linoleums, stoves and other articles. It will pay you handsomely to see us before you buy furniture.

WHITLOCK FIRM OPENS STORE TODAY

A new furniture store will be opened in Richmond today: the new Whitlock furniture store on Macdonald avenue, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets.

Organized, owned and operated by Richmond persons, the new store will hold its gala opening today, ready for business; ready to serve Richmond citizens.

Loren Whitlock and his uncle, C. O. Whitlock are the organizers of the new firm.

Great Future

Loren Whitlock yesterday declared that faith in the prosperity of this city and the knowledge of the possibilities of Richmond made possible the opening of this new and modern store.

Loren Whitlock is known to thousands of Richmond persons as 'Whit." He is a graduate of the Richmond public schools, having lived here most of his life. For some time he managed the Bay Counties service station at San Pablo and Macdonald avenue.

C. O. Whitlock formerly resided in Richmond. Several years ago he left here for the south, only to return to join his nephew in the new business venture.

Store Renovated

The store, which is located next to the Veale hotel, is one of the most modern in the vicinity. It has been completely renovated and repainted. New and modern facilities have been installed by the Whitlocks.

For their opening day the firm has arranged a display of first class merchandise, Loren Whitlock announced yesterday.

The firm will deal with the John line of furniture, including bedroom, livingroom and dining room sets. The John firm has a coast to coast reputation for fine furniture, Whitlock stated yesterday.

Kitchen stoves made by the famous A. B. company will also be heralded at the new store, Whitlock said.

The firm, at the present time, will not handle any line of radio sets.

A great future is in store for the company, Whitlock stated yesterday.

Three Robberies Reported To C. C. County Officials

Contra Costa county sheriff forces were seeking burglars who robbed three places Saturday night and made good their escape.

Pittsburg high school was entered and several doors wrecked by thieves who were unsuccessful in getting into the school safe.

Thieves obtained $36 from the cash register of the Antioch Department store, A. Arendt owner of the establishment reported.

Professional cracksmen are blamed for the safe blowing job at Concord Department store which netted $250 in cash and an equal amount in checks.

FIRST TRAIN TO CROSS S.P. BRIDGE TOMORROW

CELEBRATION PLANNED FOR NOV. 1

The first train to cross the new Southern Pacific bridge between Martinez and Benicia will be Local No. 30, leaving here at 10:48 Wednesday morning, it was announced yesterday

The train is known as the "Governor"

In connection with the announcement S P. officials announced last night that the section called "Goodyear" will be known as Benicia.

Twenty-two thousand tons of steel fabricated into the west's most gigantic structure and flung for a distance of a mile and an eighth across Suisun bay are in their final position.

After 18 months of record construction on the entire project the last of the great girders going into the vast super-structure of the span have been riveted in place and on November 1 formal dedication of the bridge to public service will be made by Southern Pacific company its builders.

Completion of the super-structure was marked early this month when the last permanent deck span ending its service as a floating falsework from which the remainder of the bridge was erected, was floated into position at the north end of the span, touching the shore of Solano county.

The task signalized virtual finish of the $12,000,000 job that has been under way since April, 1929, when engineers first launched into the amazing feat of sinking 10 great concrete piers into the bottom of the bay as the foundation for the structure.

Erection of the bridge itself signalizes elimination of the last physical barrier in transcontinental railroad travel by making possible retirement of the historic train ferries, Solano and Contra Costa, which for many years have been a fascinating though tedious phase of such travel.

A resultant saving of from 25 to 30 minutes on passenger train schedules and from two to four hours on the handling of freight trains will be among the important features of public service effected by the bridge.

The bridge lies across Suisun bay, in the upper reaches of San Francisco bay near the confluence of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers, approximately a mile east of the present train-ferrying point, and will be officially named by United States Senator Samuel M. Shortridge of California as the Martinez-Benicia bridge, honoring the two communities at either end.

Seven main through truss spans, each 526 feet long; a 328-foot lift span, the largest in the world, and two deck spans, are included in the huge structure. The largest of the 10 great concrete piers upon which it rests are 206 feet in height from bedrock to rail level, the equivalent of a 20-story building, and have bases 40 by 60 feet.

The famous old "C. P. Huntington," No. 1 engine of the Central Pacific railroad, parent organization of Southern Pacific, will lead the first train across the bridge November 1, under its own steam. Completion of the structure will be marked by a celebration at Martinez in which many northern California cities will participate.

Driver Arrested On Liquor Charge

Griffith Kirby, Roosevelt hotel, Oakland, a truck driver was freed on bail today following his arrest early Sunday morning on San Pablo avenue charged with driving while drunk, and illegal possession of liquor

Kirby was arrested by Officer A. J. Peralta at the corner of San Pablo avenue and Cutting boulevard, El Cerrito, who declared he was driving in a zig-zag way along the street. Perlata also charged that Kirby had a bottle half filled with liquor in his possession.

The arrested man was freed on $300 bail.

Judge Rules On Lien For Rent

Efforts to have a deed to Richmond properety which was executed by Steve Barbikins to natisfy a $700 rent judgment set aside proved ineffective when Superior Judge A. B. McKenzie denied the petition of Mrs. Ella C. Becker in Superior court yesterday.

Judge McKenzie held that the instrument constituted a lien on the holdings to satisfy a $5,132 obligation holding preference over the Mrs. Becker's verdict.

ELECTION IN OKLAHOMA IS HARD FIGHT

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 13.—UP—Oklahoma Democrats, determined to remove the state from the "shadow of the lonesome pine" wondered tonight how to campaign against a Republican Senator who insists upon seeking re-election on the Democratic platform.

Realizing the need of thousands of Democratic votes in order to retain his seat in the upper house, Senator W. B. Pine, who fought "shoulder to shoulder" with Senator Elmer Thomas, Democrat, in the last session for an oil tariff and against the general tariff bill after the debenture clause was removed, has decided that the state Democraeic platform suits me fine.

Although no formal statements have been made, it is known that Pine's actions have been looked on with disfavor by his party chieftains.

New Paper

"The Democratic platform could suit me no better if I had written it myself," Pine said in discussing his campaign against the blind former senator, Thomas Pryor Gore, the Democratic nominee.

Copies of Pine's campaign paper, "The Oklahoma Record," a ten page publication have been sent into virtually every home in Oklahoma, announcing the senator's determination to return to Congress as a Republican, but upon the Democratic platform planks.

Backers of Pine's campaign stressed the fact he had forgotten parttisanship and has been a regular Republican when by so doing he could best advance the interests of Oklahoma.

Pine apparently will depend much on his platform declaration for victory in the November 4 election since he has not announced a speaking itinerary.

Hot Campaign

Gore, however, has carried his campaign to every section of the state, after he was returned to public life by an overwhelming majority in the primaries.

Gore's brilliant oratory is expected to aid him greatly in his campaign against Pine, quiet and unobtrusive, to the point that he is described as "Lonesome Pine."

Pine has refused to mention Ira Hill, Republican nominee for governor.

Because he aided a motorist who had been hit by another machine to remove the wreckage from the street a 13 year old Sacramento boy was in Hospital Richmond today minus his right leg, following it's amputation by physicians Saturday night, after he had been struck by a third machine.

Joe Martines, the boy was riding with four companions when he came upon the car of C. H. Collins, Piedmont that had been struck by a machine driven by R. F. Wilson, Oakland, after it had stopped to allow the Santa Fe train to pass over San Pablo avenue, police reported. He was aiding Collins to remove his machine, when a car driven by Henry Mortinola, Ukiah crashed into the rear of the car he was pushing and injured his right leg so badly that it had to be amputated after the lad was brought to the hospital in a Wilson and Kratzer ambulance.

Police were looking for the four companions of the injured boy today. Following the accident Saturday they fled, and have not been located since that time.

TRIBUTE PAID TO LATE SOLON

The memory of the late Congressman Charles F. Curry, for so many years the congressional representative of this district, was honored yesterday at a special service in the First Baptist church in Richmond.

The service was under the joint direction of the city government of Richmond and the local chamber of commerce, with P. M. Sanford, president of the latter organization, as chairman and speaker.

"Richmond owes much of its present progress to the devotion of Congressman Curry," said Sanford "He cooperated in ways unknown to the average man, and his work paved the way for our harbor development which in turn made possible the industrial of the present and future. Richmond owes a great debt to him, as do the other cities of his district, the whole state of California and the nation."

Albert E. Carter, congressman, from Alameda county, reviewed Curry's work in the affairs of the state and nation and declared that work is an enduring monument to his fame. Carter called attention to Curry's long record in public service—first as an asembly man from San Francisco, then clerk of the city and county of San Francisco, then Secretary of State, and finally a representative in congress.

"He originally intended to stay but one or two terms," said Carter, "but he became so engrossed in his duties that he stayed on, becoming the dean of the California delegation, one of the most influential men in the entire congress of the United States. It will be a long time before we will develop another man so powerful and influential, so devoted to public interest, so respected by his colleagues."

Carter showed that Curry's work was not confined to his district. He was a member of the committee on territories, the committee on committees, and other bodies at Washington whose effect was felt upon the affairs of the entire nation.

Yesterday's service was attended by leaders of the community from all walks of life. Mrs. Ross Calfee sang two vocal numbers. Prayer was offered by the Rev Primus Bennett of the First Christian church and the dedication by the pastor of the First Baptist

A telegram of regret was received from Governor C. C. Young. "The ability, influence and industry of Congressman Curry in Washington have richly earned the admiration of every Californian," said the governor.

Bible Lectures Delivered Here

First of the series of talks on the Bible, arranged by Dr. John Hunter of Los Angeles was delivered at the First Presbyterian church last night, before a well attended meeting.

Officers announced that the public is invited to attend any of the lectures. Last night's meeting was held at 7:30 o'clock.

THE WOMAN OF IT

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

What 150,000 New York Women Want

ONE of the most interesting and intelligent of very recent activities among New York women is the movement in support of Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, woman attorney and civic leader, as the next city magistrate, to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Judge Ewald.

MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL

Approximately 150,000 New York women voters are directly represented on the nonpartisan committee of prominent women, headed by Mrs. Oliver Harriman, who presented the name of Miss Phillips to Mayor Walker the other day.

These women and many others have long been puzzled by the masculine system of political arithmetic. Granted that New York now has two admirable women magistrates—why should two be considered a fair representation for half the voting population of the city? Women have had the ballot for ten years—for twelve years, in New York—then why should the proportion of women in civic office be not even one-half of one per cent?

One hundred and fifty thousand New York women, tired of asking these questions and getting no satisfactory answer, evidently have decided that the Lord helps those who help themselves—that women voters may get more official representatives of their own sex by asking for them. That is one reason why they are asking for another woman magistrate, Miss Phillips. As the spokesman of their committee, Mrs. Estelle M. Sternberger, told the Mayor:

"Although women represent one-half the voting population, few public offices have been given to them. We believe that you appreciate the loyalty and support of the thousands of women voters of New York City. We feel that we come to you as friends, pointing out that from our best judgment the appointment of Miss Phillips is a way by which the support and commendation of a large group of voters, irrespective of party, may be achieved for your administration."

BUT these women—or any conscientious, intelligent women voters—would never dream of flocking to the support of a woman with no other qualifications than the accident of sex. Miss Phillips comes from a distinguished family of lawyers and judges. She is a graduate of New York University Law School, as well as of Kentucky University, and has practiced law in New York since 1924.

The particular reasons, however, why the 150,000 women voters want not merely another woman magistrate but Lena Madesin Phillips are summed up by Mrs. Oliver Harriman in two simple, significant sentences:

"She has the qualities particularly needed now in civic life—qualities of fair-mindedness, integrity and fearless devotion to duty. I know, too, that she has great human understanding, a qualification which is particularly valuable in the administration of the difficult task of a magistrate."

As a woman frankly interested in other women and in what they can do, it seems to us that Mrs. Harriman does not overstate the case. There's a famous feminine test by which women judge their sex, a test summarized in the approving phrase, "She's a woman's woman."

Miss Phillips proved herself a woman's woman a dozen years ago, when she founded that important and efficient organization, the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. Twice its president, now its honorary president, she has just expanded its ideals of woman-to-woman friendliness and helpfulness into the International Federation of Business and Professional Women, which she heads.

TO ORGANIZE and direct such groups, a woman must be a person with a sense of justice, a sense of balance, a sense of humor, a distinguished gift for human contacts. We have found these qualities in Lena Madesin Phillips, during an acquaintance of ten years, and it seems to us that they are qualities of value to a city magistrate and to the city he or she serves. As Miss Phillips herself has just declared:

"The magistrate's court is the people's court. To it come not only hardened criminals but occasional offenders. It needs broad human understanding as well as the administration of justice. One must have, of course, legal knowledge and experience, but one needs perhaps equally to know people. It is not enough to punish. One should be able to safeguard against repetition and even in the punishment constructively to direct. Because I believe that herein is the opportunity for a great public service I should count it a privilege to become a city magistrate."

In the extremely interesting series of articles on city magistrates which William J. Keegan has been writing for The Evening World this point has been made:

"It is the acknowledged policy of the dominant political party in New York City that all racial and religious elements in the 'melting pot' shall have a fair share in the handling of public affairs through administrative, legislative and executive offices." One of the magistrates even describes himself, in effect, as "delegate-at-large from the population of French inheritance."

Surely it is as important that women in New York—as well as the city's different races and religions—"shall have a fair share in the handling of public affairs through administrative, legislative and executive offices!"

One step toward realizing this ideal would be the appointment of another woman magistrate as well equipped for the post as Lena Madesin Phillips and as enthusiastically indorsed by 150,000 of her sex, many of them enrolled in the city's leading woman's organizations. Among these are the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs, the American Association of University Women, the National Council of Women, the American Child Health Association, the New York League of Business and Professional Women.

That the groups supporting Miss Phillips also include both the National Women's Republican Club and the Southern Women's Democratic Club sufficiently proves the nonpartisanship of the movement and acquits such indorsements as this column's of any charge of "politics."

AUTUMN REQUIEM

Let the gold leaves fall gloriously from trees,
Let hissing winds make branches gaunt and bare,
Death cannot rob the giants of their years,
Nor stab into their sap a gray despair!

ROSA ZAGNONI MARINONI.

Dr. Thomas Darlington, Health Commissioner Emeritus, says that the American woman is crippling her foot, but that she hasn't done it to the point where she is unable to put it down her husband can bear witness.

Window Flower Boxes

WHETHER mechanically inclined or not, almost anyone can make simple window boxes for flowers. Six to eight inches should be allowed for the depth, and six to nine inches for the width to give the roots of the plants sufficient stretching space. There should be a row of irregular holes for drainage in the bottom, and if small bits of pottery are laid almost over these holes they will not fill with dirt.

When completed the flower boxes can be painted green, or any other color to harmonize with the outside of the house. Then a thin layer of gravel or small stones is placed in the boxes first, followed by layers of rich dirt, alternating with a fertilizer.

A DISH A DAY

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

Anyone who goes to market these days cannot fail to be impressed with the opulent array of grapes offered. The vines of California, it seems, merely laughed at the summer drought, or perhaps they never heard of it. Large shipments of the small seedless grapes, which are the delight of the cook who just will not take time to dig the seeds out of the larger varieties, are coming into the market and they are remarkably firm and flavory this year. Malagas, so lovely in coloring that one just has to keep a stock on hand to beautify the fruit bowl no matter how fast the family eats them, vie with Tokays in popularity. All varieties are very low priced this year.

KAREN HOLLIS

If you are a time-saving cook, seedless grapes are your favorite; and if you haven't yet combined them with lime-flavored gelatin you have missed a most subtle combination of flavors and a dish that is as beautiful as it is delicious.

It isn't the time-saving cooks I am talking to today, though. The recipe I am going to give you is intended for those who are willing to spend half an hour or more wheedling the seeds out of big, luscious Tokay grapes. It isn't a job you can delegate to the children very well, because even if their fingers are willing they are usually too clumsy to ease the seeds out without leaving the grapes a shapeless mass.

It isn't really hard to remove the seeds after a little practice. Just insert a sharp knife in one side of a grape and pull the seeds out on the tip of the knife. You may have to eat the first four or five grapes so as to remove all evidence that you couldn't get the seeds out without squashing the fruit, but you won't mind that.

Tokay grapes are delicious combined with pineapple or grapefruit. And if you think you have labored enough in preparing the grapes, just substitute canned grapefruit sections for fresh in the following recipe:

TOKAY GRAPE SALAD

¾ pound Tokay grapes
8 grapefruit sections
Iceberg lettuce
Mayonnaise

Wash, stem and seed the grapes and set them in the refrigerator to chill. When ready to serve mix the grapes with a little mayonnaise and arrange them on slices of iceberg lettuce. Put two sections of grapefruit on each serving and top with a heaping spoonful of mayonnaise

PLAID ORGANDIE SPORT BLOUSE

ANGORA KNIT SWEATER

EMBROIDERY OF DAISIES ON KNITTED ENSEMBLE

HERE'S where I bring down the wrath of Rah-Rah Americans on my head! But I do think that the French can do these certain things with more fineness and charm than our whole broad country put together. I mean little sweaters de luxe, little caps, handmade blouses, scarfs and all those do-funnies that at times are so necessary.

So does Mr. Hollander think so also, for he has gathered together more tempting examples than have ever been seen under one roof—a new roof at that, built like a wonderful new setting to make that handsome jewel of a woman's adornment look swell and new and more up-to-date than anything else that has been attempted.

One really elegant, handmade, obviously French touch often has the power to make a costume just as one thoughtless addition might break it. So maybe an extravagance in one direction will produce an economy in another just for the sake of divine balance.

* * *

PLAID organdie blouses—too new for words and so smart looking. They are all finished by hand, of course, and they are black, green and yellow or they are red, black and green—something like that—with little ruffles down the front.

Try one with your new soft knit suit and see!

* * *

Angora Blouses

NEVER have you seen such featnery, downy stuff. It's like a puff of a summer breeze—and it is cuddly warmth itself, strangely enough.

These are sort of sweater blouses knitted to waist length or longer. Purling stitches make yokes, caps over sleeves, cuffs, and then the fulness spurts out restrainedly from this tightening of the needles to make the most attractive blouses for sports that you could hope to see. Of course, they are hand knitted—every mother's stitch of them.

* * *

Batiste Bosoms

THOSE rows of hand-run tucks and tiny alternations of valenciennes lace all frilled and still flat. A bit of fagotting, a row of hemstitching. Well—one inch of that sort of thing showing and you should worry about whether your suit is old or new. All eyes cannot possibly turn away from that one touch of perfect taste. They are done in fronts or chemisettes or dickeys or whatever name you give them, meaning that they are sleeveless—destined only for the finish of a suit.

SUEDE BAG SHELL HANDLE

* * *

Crocheted Caps

IT is the hood that is important this year for sports—looks like one of those gnome fairy-tale hats when you have it in your hand. Once on the head it pulls into a turn this way or that, becoming to a whole world of heads depending on its swagger and its droop. Then when it is hand crocheted by some clever fingers from brilliantly colored silk and cashmere threads you have the sports head covering shining out as individual even though it follows the basic lines of hundreds of others.

* * *

Beads for Blouses

AH—FOR that dressy suit—maybe of velvet. Fancy this! Tiny dull beads run on to chiffon or georgette. You know that heavy, handsome look the thing takes on and still it has the lure of sheerness to make it ideal for this new type of afternoon dressing.

* * *

Frosty Blue Nites

THAT hand-made nightie—simple, you know—nothing to it—but, oh, so entrancingly French and so unmistakably expensive. You want one now after all this shower of overdone lace poured over us for some seasons past. There's a new one in that shadowy, frosty, palish blue, with nothing but handbound edges—tiny pleats all the way down the front and a big long monogram under the neckline for the sole decoration. Another one, quite as simple, has short, puffy sleeves.

* * *

Shell Bag Handles

FOR last minute smartness you want a flat shell handle on your suede bag. There are different designs, all perfectly simple and thick looking, though light to carry and handle. For black or tan suede bags they are stunning.

* * *

Hat Intricacies

A HAT on the tam idea—draped most becomingly—has a cluster of tiny polka-dotted feathers to do its trimming work. There's freshness about it you will love.

Then a tricorne of hatter's plush to perch way up on the head, has a sophisticated little wide meshed veil dropping down over the eyes. You wear it down in the late afternoons and throw it back over the hat for mornings. That's the distinction and the difference.

When Baby Begins To Use a Cup

MOTHERS who have gone through the siege know how difficult it is to break a child of the bottle habit which is usually caused by the long delay.

If the infant is weaned at six months he should be given milk in the bottle, but when he reaches the tenth month he is ready for cup drinking and it should not be delayed any longer. A healthy child will drink water from a cup as soon as he is able to sit up; then when the time for the transfer of the milk arrives he will accept the change as a natural process, provided no mention is made of it and there is no bottle in sight.

The child who continues bottle feeding into the second year becomes attached to it and when, finally, deprived of it will often adopt another habit—for instance, thumb-sucking frequently starts at this period.

Often children refuse to drink milk at all when deprived of the bottle after the second year and even cereals broths, etc., must be given in the bottle. This is absurd and quite unnecessary and should by all means be prevented. If the baby is strong-willed and persistently refuses to take milk from a cup let him do without food for a day or even two. But these drastic measures will not be required if you introduce cup drinking by time baby celebrates his first birthday.

Outside Looking I

INSIDE looking out is not the only thing to consider when purchasing curtains for your home, particularly when one lives in a big apartment house. Consider your neighbor, too — nothing like the Golden Rule, you know. Try to keep the design and color of your curtains in harmony with the outside coloring and architecture as well as with its inside surroundings.

Do not place a piano against an outside wall, but, if this is your only available space, be sure to place it at least six inches from the wall so there is a circulation of air.

THE RODNEY BINKS MURDER CASE

(A Detective Story to End All Detective Stories)

SYNOPSIS of previous chapters, which are omitted by request:

Rodney Binks, a wealthy dry-toast importer, was found dead in his library one morning in May. His skull was crushed between two bronze book ends, and in addition there was a bullet through his heart and strychnine in his stomach. But his kidneys were O. K. The body was found by Sahara, the Anglo-Japanese butler, lying across an Oriental rug on which two installments were still due. When the murder was discovered all the windows in the Binks residence were locked, the doors of the library hermetically sealed, and even the faucets were filtered. It was impossible for the killer to have escaped. The police were summoned, and suspicion rested on the butler, Sahara. They were bout to give him a one-way trip in the wagon when Hilo Jack, the famous detective, dropped in on the scene. What an imperturbable scientist was Hilo Jack—and game! The blundering police hated him. Calmly humming a theme song and flecking his ashes on the rug, Hilo Jack took command of the situation. Now go on with the succeeding chapter at your own risk.

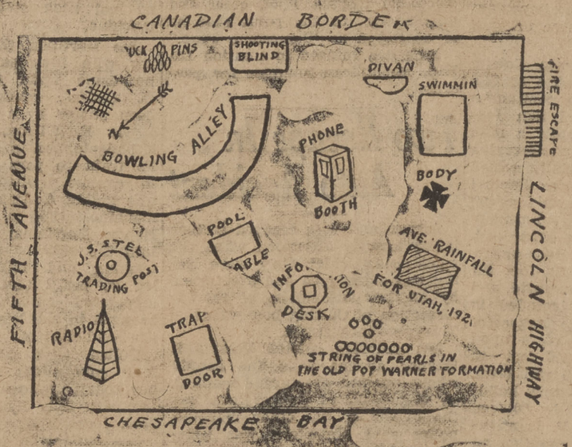

DIAGRAM OF ROOM IN WHICH RODNEY BINKS WAS MURDERED

CHAPTER MCMXXX, A. D.

"HAVE you any suspicion of the murderer, Captain Hennessy?" asked Hilo Jack. (Hennessy was only a sergeant, but Hilo Jack called him a captain to get his goat.)

"We was on the point of nabbin' Sahara, the butler," said Hennessy with a touch of brusqueness and a dash of bitters.

"Don't be absurd," sneered the great detective. "Sahara did not commit the crime." He lit another cigaret, spelled "cigarette" by some newspapers.

"But all the windows were locked, all the doors were hermetically sealed from the inside and even the water pipes filtered when Sahara found the body," snapped Sergt. Hennessy. "It HAD to be him!"

"It does NOT have to be he," corrected Hilo Jack, who was the master of seventeen languages, including the English.

"Bedad and begorra," who else was it?" exploded Hennessy.

"That I shall presently discover," murmured the great detective. He lit another cigaret. "Hennessy, you are pretty dumb. You think because the doors were hermetically sealed—by the way, Hennessy, how do you know the doors were hermetically sealed?"

"Because Mr. Binks was a hermit."

"Your usual police stupidity!" snapped Hilo Jack. "Because the windows were locked, the doors sealed and all the water pipes filtered, you believe no one but Sahara could have got in the house. But look around you, Hennessy—look around you and think! That open fireplace over there, for instance. Couldn't some one have come down that, murdered Rodney Binks and made his escape the same way?"

"You ain't tryin' to pin this crime on Santa Claus, are you, are you?" asked Hennessy in amazement.

"There is no Santa Claus," the great detective said incisively. "Bah!" He lit another cigaret.
